LINING 'EM OUT

They take the cake up in St. Louis when it comes to rabid fans. They kick even when strikes are called on Hub Pardue. However, Hub has made three hits since arriving in St. Louis.

There isn't a superstition extant that George Stallings doesn't know about and believe in. He has a boy whose sole duty is to keep birds from lighting on the roof of the cut bench during a game, and all the bat handles must point toward the dugout. No newspaper must be allowed to lie near the bench.

Most folks credit Rudolph, Tyler and James with helping the Braves most in catching the Giants, but Merle, Myers and Bescher get a lot of votes from New York fans.

A big shipment of English footballs has gone astray on the way over sea, says San Francisco dealers to whom they were consigned, and no one seems to know where they are. Maybe the Germans have hooked them. A little American football injected into this already sanguinary struggle would just about complete the business.

The Cardinals have struck out more than any set of players in the National.

The Braves have a Smith, Schmitt and Schmitt. Stallings is on the lookout for a Smythe.

"I am resolved to go to Berlin if it costs me my last moustich," says Carl Nicholas. But Nick, old top, if you get to Berlin without a moustich in your pocket, what'll you have to spend?

Survey of the map brings out quaint fact that everybody is fighting except prizefighters.

Howl from owners at suggestion that baseball receipts be taxed to produce war time revenue. Baseball receipts have been nickelized considerably by the owners themselves already to produce baseball war revenue.

If the Giants win the pennant Rube Marquard will deserve as much as any southpaw ditchdigger in Timbuctoo.

Rube Marquard has been ranking thirty-sixth among the pitchers. He hasn't won fifty per cent of his games this year.

This will make Connie's fourth pennant with his present machine. The Cubs won four pennants in five years also and then slipped badly. They looked almost as unbeatable as the Mackmen. But there is this notable difference—when the Cubs had landed their fourth flag the average age of Chance's machine was at least four years above the average age of Mack's. Which would indicate that there seems to be nothing to do but sit back and wait for old Doc Time to get in his work.

FANS BUSY FIXING FARRELL-CHANCE DIFFERENCES

Intimated Today That Chance May Finish Out Season with New York Americans and Stay Next Season.

New York, Sept. 14.—Mutual friends were busy today in an effort to patch up the differences between President Frank Farrell and Manager Frank Chance of the New York Americans. It was even intimated in some quarters that Chance would remain as leader of the team the remainder of this season and that he might even be with the team next season.
